BETTING BILL IS PASSED 206 TO 38 BY COMMONS

Outlaws the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes, It Is Stated

EXPECT ROYAL ASSENT

Will Prohibit Publishing The Results of The Drawings

By H. R. Reynolds
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Nov. 14—(INS)—Outlawing the Irish hospitals Sweepstakes, the House of Commons today passed the betting and lotteries bill by a vote of 206 to 38. The formality of Royal Assent is expected immediately.

Distribution of tickets for the Irish Sweep, French, Spanish and other government lotteries, will henceforth be prohibited in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Publication of the results of the drawings, which packs the newspapers for days several times a year with the names of lucky ones, will be prohibited.

"There is nothing to prevent Britons' sending their ten shillings to Dublin to buy tickets, but it is believed that interest in the Sweepstakes will wane when bettors are not able to secure immediate news of the drawings, but will have to depend on the radio or Dublin or Paris newspapers for winners."

The Irish Sweep alone took millions of pounds out of Britain each year, and returned only slightly more than half in prizes.

Opposition to the bill, which also imposes restrictions on horse race and dog track betting, aroused warm opposition, and a stronger negative vote in the House of Commons would have been registered had members been allowed to step outside party lines and vote freely.

A movement for a British lottery has never gained much ground in official quarters.

Passage of the lottery bill made it possible for this session of parliament to be prorogued Friday for the state reopening by the King, one of London's most colorful pageants, next week.

Rev. Solla Speaks At W. C. T. U. Peace Meeting

The program of the Armistice meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Travel Club home, last evening, included responsive reading by the group; prayer by the Rev. A. G. Solla; vocal solo by Mrs. Ada B. Sands; and a sketch by Mrs. Raymond Beswick, Miss Betty Beswick and Miss Evelyn Streeter, "The Peace Garden," which is to mark the peaceful relations between the United States and Canada, although the long frontier is unfortified.

Reading of statements by noted advocates for peace included those of General Smuts, Dr. Cadman, Dr. Fossdick, and the pronouncement of the recent convention of the Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Solla in his address told of his experiences in the World War, and conditions leading to that disastrous conflict. His contact with some of the finest youth of the country, who were sacrificed, was mentioned. The speaker left with the gathering the fact that only the spirit of the Prince of Peace which maketh wars to cease in all the earth can overcome the greed and lust of power and wealth in the hearts of men which incite to war. "It is difficult to beat swords into plowshares when shares in munitions-making pay large dividends."

A basket was filled with potatoes by the members, this to be given to a needy family.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served by the social committee in charge of Mrs. John Bingham.

W. H. M. S. MEETING

The Women's Home Missionary Society of Bristol M. E. Church will conduct a meeting tomorrow evening at eight o'clock in the church parlor. A large attendance is requested.

ROAST PIG DINNER

Justice of the Peace, James Laughlin entertained a number of friends at a roast pig dinner in celebration of his birthday anniversary last night at the Elks club.

TOO SAFE HIDING PLACE

DEBRECZEN, Hungary — (INS)—A wallet stuffed with banknotes was found behind the cashier's desk in the Golden Bull, famous inn now being reconstructed.

An examination proved it belonged to Lajos Bereczky, the head waiter. It had been stolen from him 12 years ago.

The thief evidently hid it behind the cashier's desk, intending to bring it out when the hue and cry had died down. But it had slipped so far down that he could not reach it.

The move was expected to invite action from the federal government.

PROBLEM CHILD STUDIED BY 110 AT INSTITUTE

Psychiatrists, Psychologists, and Neurologists Gather at Langhorne

SEVERAL MEN SPEAK

LANGHORNE, Nov. 14—A gathering of psychiatrists, psychologists, neurologists and educators, totalling 110, assembled at "Greenwood," one of the buildings connected with The Woods Schools, yesterday, to participate in two meetings, throughout which the "problem" child was the subject.

The institute, addressed by several psychiatrists and neurologists, proved most interesting to the leaders in these fields, who came from New York, New Jersey, Maryland, and various parts of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Mollie Woods Hare, under whose leadership The Woods Schools are operated, welcomed the many guests. A luncheon was served between the morning and afternoon meetings.

Dr. Howard W. Potter, M. D., professor of clinical psychiatry, Columbia University, New York City, directed the meetings and also led a panel discussion on "The Role of Emotions in the Training and Treatment of the Exceptional Child."

The morning session was addressed by Samuel T. Orton, M. D., director, department of neuropathology, Neurological Institute, New York, N. Y. His paper was entitled "The Development of Speech Understanding in Relation to Intelligence." The second speaker of the morning was Walter Timme, M. D., professor of clinical neurology, Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, who spoke on "The Influence of Disturbances in the Glands of the Internal Secretion on the Development of the Child." This latter talk was illustrated with lantern slides.

The panel discussion in the afternoon, led by Dr. Potter, was participated in by: Earl D. Bond, M. D., medical director, Institute of the Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia; James Q. Holopple, Ph. D., chief psychologist, Department of Institutions and Agencies, Trenton, N. J.; Francis M. Garver, Ph. D., department of education, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; and Lloyd N. Yepsen, director, division of classification and education, Department of Institutions and Agencies, State of New Jersey. The latter two are members of the advisory council of Woods Schools.

Other members of the advisory council of the Woods Schools are: Edward L. Bauer, M. D., department of pediatrics, Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia; G. Kirby Collier, M. D., Rochester, N. Y.; Edward R. Johnstone, Ph. D., director, the Training School, Vineland, N. J.; Henry Lovett, M. D., Langhorne, Pa.; Samuel T. Orton, M. D., director, department of neuropathology, Neurological Institute, New York, N. Y.; Ross V. Patterson, M. D., dean, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa.; Howard W. Potter, M. D., professor of clinical psychiatry, Columbia University, New York, N. Y.; Esther L. Richards, M. D., Henry Phipps Psychiatric Clinic, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.; Henry C. Schumacher, M. D., director, Child Guidance Clinic, Inc., Cleveland, O.; Edward A. Strecker, M. D., director, department of psychiatry, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa.; Frederick Tilney, M. D., director of research, Neurological Institute of Medical Center, New York, N. Y.; and Walter Timme, M. D., professor of clinical neurology, Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, N. Y.

SAFE AND COMFORTABLE TRANS-OCEANIC TRAVEL IN DIRIGIBLES AT A REASONABLE COST IS NEAR, IS BELIEF OF DR. HUGO ECKENER, GRAF MASTER

German is Devoting His Life To Ambition of Count Zeppelin

TRIAL FLIGHTS SOON

Advantages of Dirigible Over Airplane in Oversea Travel Given

Trial flights preliminary to operation of a regular German-North American transoceanic passenger and freight airship line are scheduled to begin in the Spring. Dr. Hugo Eckener, renowned German commander of the Graf Zeppelin and director of the currently operating German-South American airship line, is now in this country completing the arrangements. International News Service herewith presents an exclusive interview with Dr. Eckener detailing plans for this epochal step in aeronautics.

(Copyright, 1934, by L. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(INS)—Safe and comfortable transoceanic travel in dirigibles at a reasonable cost, and in one-third of the time now required, is near. With it will come extensive new development of world traffic and world culture, Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Zeppelin master, told International News Service in an exclusive interview.

Dr. Eckener is devoting his life to realization of the ambition of Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, veteran of the American Civil War and builder of the first modern, semi-rigid "lighter-than-air ship," Zeppelin, says Eckener, "had the vision of world traffic with airships."

The ponderous Teuton waxed voluble over the advantages of the dirigible over the airplane in overseas travel, because:

His Graf Zeppelin has completed 415 trips over a total distance of more than 600,000 miles, landing frequently at fields lacking mooring facilities;

The Graf has crossed the Atlantic 71 times, 64 of these trips being across the South Atlantic and 7 across the North Atlantic;

It has crossed the Pacific Ocean once, the Arctic Sea once, besides a number of trips over the whole of the Mediterranean Sea and the Northern Ocean;

It has cruised over three continents—Asia, Europe and North America. Virtually all of these trips were by

HIGH SCHOOL ACTRESS

MISS LORETTA CLAY

Who Has a Prominent Part in "Happy Landings," Which Will Be Staged at Bristol High School, November 15th and 16th

FINE CAST IS READY FOR "HAPPY LANDINGS"

Dress Rehearsal of High School Production To Be Tomorrow

A TALENTED GROUP

Plans for that hilarious three-act farce, "Happy Landings," are about complete, ready for its presentation Thursday and Friday nights in the high school auditorium.

The cast has been co-operating extremely well, practicing every evening under the direction of Miss Wilkes and Miss Hewitt. Each member of the cast is exceptionally well-fitted for his part and both cast and coaches feel as though this year's production will surpass those of former years.

The success of the play is further assured because of the fine work done by the various committees headed by Franklin Parr, production manager, and Leonard Allman, stage manager. Those comprising the different committees follow: Tickets, Mr. Coles and Virginia Smith; advertising, Claire Ruth and Mary Brambley; ushers, Mary Terneson; properties, Oscar Booz; electrician, Kenneth Dyer; prompter, Eleanor Petrick. Mr. Hertzler has been giving his help as technical advisor.

The ushers composed of Mary Terneson, Ethel Snyder, Thelma Weik, Margaret Stephenson and Frances Shelley, will look attractive and add to the spirit of the occasion by being attired in aviator costumes. During intermission the Senior Class with the help of the ushers will sell home-made candy for the benefit of their year book fund. Entertainment will also be provided by Mary Ross, soloist, accompanied by Eleanor Dyer, and Leonard Hermann, trumpeter.

There will be a dress rehearsal performance on Wednesday afternoon, November 14, which the Junior High School will be invited to attend.

The talented cast is composed of Loretta Clay as Barbara; Margaret Collier as Fifi; Lillian Dries as Juliet; Genevieve Cherubini, as Mrs. Stackpoole; Charlotte Abbott and Winifred Flynn, as Miss Sabrina and Miss Busby, respectively; Walter Fagan, as Michael; Harley Davies, as Professor Courtwright; Ernest Orazi, as Skofsky; Johnson Orr, as Mr. Stackpoole; Howard Baker, as Washington Jones; and Franklin Silber, as Spotty.

ARREST THOUSANDS

London, Eng., Nov. 14—Thousands were arrested in sweeping political round-ups in central Europe today as the Balkan governments pressed their investigation of the background of the slaying of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Barthou of France. The chief raids, including the greatest round-up of political extremists in many years, were conducted in Roumania and Bulgaria. It was revealed in dispatches reaching London from Bucharest and Sofia.

DISTELHURN GOES HOME

New York City, Nov. 14—A few hours after he had received news that the body of a girl resembling his six-year-old daughter had been found near Nashville, Tennessee, Alfred E. Distelhurn, Nashville salesman, left for his home today. Distelhurn, who has been waiting at a New York hotel for almost a week to contact supposed kidnappers of the missing girl, refused to believe the battered body was that of his daughter.

SLAYS MANAGER

New York City, Nov. 14—Clarence Drake, 44, manager of an A. & P. chain store in Brooklyn, was slain today by two hold-up men who fled without obtaining any money. The thugs entered as Drake was opening the store and ordered him to "stick 'em up." Whether he attempted to resist, police did not ascertain. At any rate, the robbers suddenly opened fire and Drake fell with a fatal wound in the abdomen, and the two thugs fled.

WINTER RELIEF OF 4,000,000 IS U. S. WORRY

Subsistence Farm Plan Is Extended to the Big Industrial Centers

500 HOUSES ARE READY

By Thomas S. Sandifer
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(INS)—With a winter relief roll forecast at around 4,000,000 families, the Administration is focusing attention on its $25,000,000 subsistence homestead program, now being extended to big industrial centers.

Charles E. Pynchon, general manager of the subsistence homesteads division of the interior department, reported that nearly $19,000,000 of the total had been allocated, and $4,000,000 actually expended.

Explaining just what progress has been made in the program, he said:

"We have today 63 projects in various stages of development, of which 40 have been publicly announced. On about half of these house construction is under way."

"The remaining 23 projects have been approved, have received allotments and will soon be under way. Approximately 500 houses have been completed, are under construction, or ready to begin."

"Our conception of a subsistence homestead is a house with necessary outbuildings on a plot of ground large enough to produce from one-third to two-thirds of the food needed by the homestead family. This means production for home consumption, and not for sale. Therefore outside means of income are also necessary."

He explained that four main types of development are under way:

1. Small garden plots close to major industrial centers.
2. Slightly larger homesteads near decentralized industries.
3. Rural homesteads.
4. Special types to meet the needs of so-called "stranded populations."

Homesteads vary in size from houses of three to six rooms, and from one acre for workmen's gardens up to 30 acres in rural homestead projects.

A community of this type may contain upward of 500 individual homestead units, or as few as 25. While comparatively few rural settlements have been completed, Harry L. Hopkins, FERA head, said their success pointed the way to possible easing of the winter relief in the cities.

One new scheme being considered is one for rehabilitating some 10,000 veterans of the World War.

In general the program, besides assisting the families concerned, is credited with furnishing considerable employment through clearing and construction work.

GIVE ANOTHER FRANCHISE FOR MORRISVILLE BUSES

Trenton Man is Given Permission By the Public Service Commission

COMPLICATIONS LIKELY

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 14—Morrisville's bus fight was thrown wide open again yesterday when it was announced that Israel Richmond, Trenton tire dealer, was awarded a permit by the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission to operate buses between Morrisville and Trenton.

At the present time, the buses between here and Trenton are being operated by the Delaware River Coach Company, which has been subjected to severe criticism during the past few months by the traveling public. The same persons who recently operated the trolley service here are connected with the operation of the local buses.

Legal complications appeared evident when the announcement of the awarding of the permit to Richmond was made public. During a recent hearing before the Public Service Commission in Philadelphia, Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, borough officials, and citizens testified. Minot J. Hill, president of the now defunct trolley company, and now at the head of the present operating bus company, claimed at the hearing that he had an earlier permit entitling his company to begin bus service at "any time they saw fit."

State Senator Clarence J. Buckman, attorney for Richmond, stated that legal proceeding would be taken against the Delaware River Coach Company unless it discontinued its operation of buses.

Richmond, in presenting his case before Common Council here a few months ago, stated that he had purchased three new buses and would operate them on a 15 or 20 minute schedule, and would cover the same route, with certain additions, that the old trolley line covered. He said that he intended operating buses over the North Delmor Avenue route, which had been discontinued when the present bus company began operations, despite the vigorous protests of the residents of that section. Over 235 residents of North Delmor Avenue and nearby streets signed a petition and presented it to Council voicing their objections over the discontinuance of bus service along this route.

Common Council here, under the direction of the newly formed Transportation Committee, has bitterly opposed the operation of buses by the present company. Thoroughly aroused by the poor condition of streets here when the old trolley line was being run, the borough officials sought to replace the Delaware River Coach Company with Richmond buses.

Many complaints have been received by the Council since the installation of the present bus service. These complaints state that "the buses are unsafe, the schedule is not regular nor dependable." There have also been complaints to the fact that the buses speed within borough limits and endanger the lives of pedestrians.

SENTENCE GOLDEN TO PAY FINE, COSTS FOR LIQUOR SELLING

Sale Alleged to Have Been Made at the Lincoln Point Restaurant

KING MUST PAY WIFE

Siles Carpenter Ordered to Pay $5 Weekly for Family's Support

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 14—Pleading guilty to a charge of the unlawful sale of liquor on Sunday, Gus Golden, of the Lincoln Point Restaurant, near Morrisville, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to pay a fine of $25 and costs of prosecution and serve not less than 30 days or more than one year in the County Prison.

Arraigned before Judge Calvin S. Boyer on a charge of desertion and non-support, Earl King, Siles carpenter, was directed yesterday to pay $5 a week toward the support of his wife and three children and pay the costs of prosecution at the rate of $1 a week for forty weeks.

King was described by one witness as "a big shot who stayed out all night and visited tap rooms." King himself denied that he was "a big shot" but that he got the name through reflected glory because he took the boss foreman of the CWA project along to work every morning. At the present, he said, he receives 65 cents an hour as a carpenter and works but two or three days a week.

When questioned by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn about spending his money for drinks, King said:

"I gave my wife one-half of what I earned and I didn't spend all of my money on beer. Many times they accused me of staying out all night when I was ploughing in the moonlight or slept in the chickenhouses to keep fires burning. I am willing to support my 'kids'. There is a living for everybody in this world."

Before imposing sentence, Judge Boyer said to King:

"Apparently you realize your legal responsibility. You and your wife ought to live together for the sake of your children. If your employment was steady and your wages more adequate, the Court would make an order sufficient to allow your wife and children to live properly. Four people cannot live on $5."

William Nolan, of Newtown, charged with surety of the peace, was directed by Judge Boyer to leave Bucks county and "stay out" if he wished not to get into any further trouble. He was charged with beating his wife.

Hope To Secure Federal Funds For County Classes

J. W. Whitlock, Fallsington, today announced that if sufficient students are secured (19 for each subject), and funds are secured from the federal government to cover salaries of instructors, advanced study classes will be open to Bucks County residents having a budgetary deficiency.

The entire project, states Mr. Whitlock, is contingent on the enrollment. It is hoped by those interested that classes may be started in Bristol, Morrisville, Fallsington, Newtown, Yardley, New Hope.

If sufficient scholars enroll, and federal funds are secured for teachers' salaries, school boards in localities where classes are to be started will be asked to provide a room, with heat and light, and necessary supplies.

The plan as outlined calls for the subjects of mathematics, music, English, history, economics, sociology, and commercial course. If plans are completed, teachers will be those throughout the county qualified to teach advanced subjects.

LUNCHEON MEETING

An invitation is extended through Mrs. Charles T. Owens, Eastern vice chairman of Motion Pictures for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, for those interested to attend a luncheon-meeting at the Warwick Hotel, Philadelphia, Monday, November 26th, at one p. m. The affair is under auspices of the Philadelphia Motion Picture Forum, and reservations may be made through Mrs. Benjamin Loeb, care of Warwick Hotel. The topic will be "What are public groups really doing?" and Mrs. Bettina Guney, of the National Board of Review, will tell of her recent motor trip to Hollywood. Several "movie" men will speak. Warner Bros. will entertain at a nearby theatre after the meeting.

FASTER

We are not so credulous as to suppose the ultimate in speed has been attained even as a new streamlined passenger train of the Union Pacific crosses the continent in 56 hours and an Italian flies an airplane 7 1/4 miles a minute.

Either way it is fast enough, goodness knows, but in the speed of twentieth century conveyances there apparently is no ultimate. As the great competition of travel by air, by rail and by road heightens, to get there faster is the goal of all three. The triumph of the Canadian Pacific's swift train has the center of the stage for the moment, but soon we shall hear of breath-taking accomplishments by air and road.

The development of a faster train is, of course, the answer of the railroads to the challenge of aviation companies and the automobile manufacturers. For more than a score of years the railroads had sat by, inactive, while vast strides forward in comfort, speed and safety were made both in planes and cars. The awakening, oddly enough, has come with the depression when hard times accentuated the loss in revenues of the railroads and brought to them the realization that something had to be done. It is in the last half-dozen years that the really important progress in travel by rail has been made—air conditioning, the really excellent club cars and now the fastest trains in history.

The forward march of transportation is an important factor in the development of a country. It would be even more reassuring to know we could get there now faster than ever before, if somebody would answer the question: Where?

TOO CLEVER

It was Talleyrand who said to diplomats, "Above all, no zeal." He might have added, "No cleverness." That advice would apply to the too adroit response of Japan to the protests of the United States and Great Britain against an oil monopoly in Manchukuo. Why do you address us, asks Tokyo. You have not recognized the independence of Manchukuo, and still maintain that it belongs to China. In that case you should appeal to Nanking. If this were intended to force recognition of Manchukuo by some other nation than San Salvador, it will be manifestly futile. So it will prove to be regarded as only a "smart" diplomatic reply. It does not touch the main question, and is therefore, as the British foreign office promptly states, wholly unsatisfactory. Japan has signed a treaty guaranteeing the open door in all her Asiatic possessions. Judging by realities and not by artificial paper arguments, Japan is in full control of Manchukuo. In the end she will have to answer the American and British complaints.

The government will employ an army of 25,000 to discover what the depression and the drought have done to the farmers. The farmers, meanwhile, will continue to fend out for themselves.

Some of those farmers who have been paid so generously for the liters of poisons they didn't raise must be sorry now that they didn't go in for guinea-pigs.

If the author took ten pages to say what a modern would put in 10 words, the book is a classic.

Excellent music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gamble, accompanied by Miss Lillian Patterson at the piano, and by the church choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rollins and family, Doylestown, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Klockner.

Mrs. Edward A. Vansant is confined to the house with an attack of tonsillitis.

Mrs. Ella B. Graves left Langhorne last week for Philadelphia, where she will spend some time with her son, prior to going to Florida where she will spend the winter months.

Miss Edith Ashauer, of Morristown, N. J., was a recent visitor here.

Mrs. George H. Cliff was hostess to her card club one day last week. They will meet the next time at the home of Mrs. Alice Hayes, Elkins Park.

"The Thespians," a local dramatic group, have renewed their activities again this fall. They met at the home of Mrs. Victor Hebbert on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Hebbert has acted as their coach and adviser, coaching "Nothing But the Truth" and the "Thirteenth Chair" which were presented very successfully by the "Thespians" last year. They are starting plans for another play which they hope to present some time during the mid-winter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Benson entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gatter and daughter, Jules, Lawnside, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gunser, Dolington, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Theilacker on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thoman entertained Mrs. E. Becker, Mrs. Ella Stickle and daughters, Ella and Anna, and John Sweeney, Roxborough, on Sunday.

Mrs. M. Newton, Elkins Park, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kaer.

Mr. and Mrs. William Daniels visited Mr. and Mrs. Harold Titus, Hatboro, on Saturday evening.

Acid In Kidneys Brings Old Age States Authority

Sharp Back Pains, Nightly Rising and Stiffness in Back and Lower Limbs Are Danger Signals

Science Now Brings the World Indo-Vin, a New Medicine Which Has Diuretic Action Upon Afflicted Kidneys and Costs But a Trifle

A notable discovery has been made that is bringing happiness to men and women, especially past 40, who are suffering many common afflictions due to deranged kidneys and similar disorders. Not a cure-all but a new medicinal formula that works with the sufferer's own food, called Indo-Vin, now being introduced in Bristol at the Victor Cut Rate store. It was unknown in this vicinity a few weeks ago, but to day the people of Bristol are using hundreds of bottles and it has become literally famous in this section. In fact, it is helping people who had never been really helped before by ANY medicine.

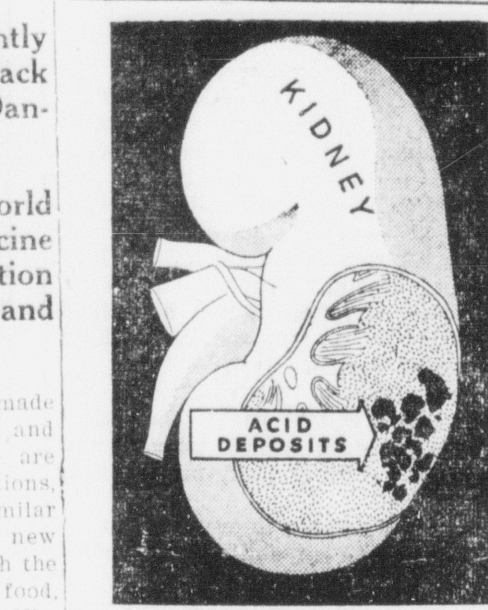

G. H. Mosby, The originator of Indo-Vin

How It Acts

Indo-Vin is taken shortly after meals, so it mixes with the food in one's stomach and aids Nature by its diuretic action upon sluggish kidneys, flushing out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing backache, sharp pains and getting up at night.

The kidneys are filters which remove impurities from your blood and when these impurities, or acid deposits, clog the kidneys, there is a dull, aching feeling across the back and stiffness in the back and lower limbs or rheumatic affliction.

Cleansing out these impurities permits the kidneys to do their work properly and gives complete relief from bladder irritation and weakness, nightly rising, spots before the eyes, swelling of ankles and rheumatism.

Impurities (or Acid Deposits) in Kidneys Are the Common Cause of Rheumatic and Neuritis Pains and Low Vitality.

Medical authorities agree that such disorders make us old before our time, but there is a way to obtain blessed relief for Indo-Vin acts with Nature to drive out the simple poisons that cause the terrific aches and pains, giving quick relief. Likewise, it relieves the agony and misery, due to rheumatic and neuritis affliction and also has a great cleansing action upon the stomach, liver and bowels, thus improving the whole system in general.

This is no mere tablet, pill or salts, and not a powder, syrup or capsule, and it does not contain alcohol or a single habit-forming drug, but it is a scientific LIQUID mixture from 21 Medicinal Plants, all blended into one remarkable compound. It contains more ingredients than perhaps three ordinary medicines put together, and is the talk of millions all over America. While it is being introduced in Bristol every suffering person can take it at the small cost of only a few cents a day. So if afflicted kidneys or similar disorders are ruining your life, it would certainly be a mistake not to try it.

Indo-Vin is now being introduced to the public daily here in Bristol at the Victor Cut Rate store, 303 Mill street, (Adv.)

"BEACH BEAUTY" by ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER I

A STRONG blow came up from the West Indies and for a day and a night the wind and the rain howled through the Halifax River country, lashing the supple palms, straining vainly at the mossy pine trees, sweeping small boats left carelessly at the docks and strewn the streets with leaves, small branches and palm fronds.

On the morning after the storm Kay Owen rose early and went out into the welcome semi-tropical sun which was driving already the great pools of water left by the rain. Kay walked rapidly, but easily, with rhythmic, long-legged steps, her body slim, young and strong under the thin white linen dress. A very pretty girl, Kay Owen, with jauntily bobbed hair of a dark red, skin somewhere between tan and gold, and candid merry eyes that were memorably green.

She had a poise, a presence, that was with her this early Florida morning, was with her always. This one quality alone would have been sufficient to make her one of the real beauties of the town. Already and Kay was nineteen and had won her leading parts with the Daytona Beach Community Players over girls who had more experience and more social advantages.

And in the money sense Kay Owen had few such advantages. The Owen family—Kay, her mother, and Bud—was undeniably poor, and had been so since Ross Owen's death one year the boy broke. Earnest young Bud worked in the bank, Mrs. Owen long since had opened the upper floor of their home to roomers, and Kay finally had to drop out of the teachers' college to come home and look for a job which she had not yet found.

And here was Kay Owen this early morning, walking eight blocks to the bus line, a girl who in the big city might easily have a Rolls at her command if she only knew it, and more important, if she were that sort of a girl. Which she wasn't. Not that she was even thinking about it. Her mind was on the Kayo.

The Kayo was the Owens' surviving luxury. Really, it was more hers than the family's, and less a luxury than it seemed. It was a small motor launch, just big enough for six or seven people to go "outside" in, out in the open ocean, fishing. Ross Owen had bought it in 1926 for his tomboyish young daughter, who could even then land a sea bass, a red snapper or a scintillating dolphin with more skill than many a man.

The family had sold the last of their automobiles, but the Kayo remained. It was not very expensive to operate and often a half day's catch of fish more than paid for the gasoline and the time and trouble. And it was a release. On a movielight night, with the millions of boys hanging low as they lay only in the far south, Kay could pilot her boat down the channel of the broad Halifax river, in and out among the low, wooded islands, and within sound of the eternal surf which washed up on the beach a quarter mile to the east, and at such times the world was very well lost.

Two days ago Kay had heeded the storm warnings and had taken her boat into the shelter of the boat yard. Now that the storm was over she planned taking it back up to the city docks. At Main street, the principal business section of the peninsula—really it was an island—side of Daytona Beach, Kay boarded the west bound bus and rode toward the river.

As the bus went out upon the narrow bridge that led to the mainland, Kay looked up and down at the peaceful water shining so innocently in the morning sun. To the north she could see the Seabreeze bridge, perhaps a mile distant, and beyond that, hazily, the bridge at Ormond; to the south lay the two other Daytona bridges. Ahead lay the principal part of the city, white buildings, green foliage and a golden dome of a church shining in the sun. Only last night this had been a scene of fury. The river had lashed up over the coquina rock wall, into the narrow strip of park, the trees had been tossed and torn by the wind and rain and the entire city had been a place of rage and a certain dread.

Once across the river, the bus turned south up broad Beach street from which the old town of Daytona looked out upon the Halifax, across the narrow little park. At the boat-yard Kay found her little craft uninjured by the storm, sleek, serene and, nevertheless, sturdy, a boat to be depended upon except in an unusually rough sea.

Having inspected the Kayo, she chatted a moment with the young man who worked for the boat yard. "How's the show going to be tomorrow night?" he asked.

"Come and find out," she said. "I wouldn't miss."

"Well, see that you don't. I think it ought to be good. We've worked like the dickens on it."

"What's it about?"

"Did you ever hear of Noel Coward?"

"No, I never."

"Didn't you—well, you come and see it."

"What's the name of it again?"

"Private Lives."

"You got the main part, haven't you?"

"The leading woman's, yes, but you wait till you see Dick Potter as the hero."

"I can wait plenty long for that. What I want to see's you."

Kay gave the young man such a smile that for the next hour he was misplacing his tools and stumbling over his own feet. She turned the flywheel of the Kayo a few times, heard the good old motor take hold, and rather sad face, a face that spoke of dissipation, cynicism and yet a definite gentility. There he was, within a stone's throw, Earl Harrow, producer of Broadway hits, master of stars, one of the most widely publicized, most powerful men in a glamorous world. He walked slowly toward his boat, following the tough little man in white flannels and blue sweater, and disappeared within the deckhouse.

"He's going to lay up here a spell, I reckon," Mike said, not even having noticed Earl Harrow's arrival.

"He is?" Kay said, speaking really to herself. "He is?"

This was the sort of thing she never imagined happened in real life. This time the mountain had come to Mahomet.

Earl Harrow lifted his highball glass, gestured with it languidly, and prepared to leave the little canal and go on down the river to the docks.

As she drew near the city docks she saw in her usual place a large yacht of a size and splendor one seldom saw on the Halifax. Such boats, drawing considerable water and being able to withstand almost anything the Atlantic had to offer, usually went down "outside." Coming alongside Kay read the name on the graceful stern: Commander III, New York. The Commander III was new to her, a handsome craft that meant a millionaire, no less. Such a handsome craft, in fact, that Kay forgot to be annoyed because the skipper had tied up in her place. She went on down a bit and made the Kayo fast, then walked up the dock to give the new arrival a closer inspection.

One of the professional skippers sat on the dock, scraping the inside of his pipe-bowl with a broken knife.

"How you, Kay? Didn't have any trouble with the Kayo?"

"Not a bit, Mike—who belongs to this skiff?"

Mike cleared his throat and spat into the river.

"Earl Harrow," he said. The name was surprisingly familiar. Kay tried to remember Harrow? Harrow? Then she said suddenly: "Not Earl Harrow, the producer?"

Mike kept poising at his pipe. "He's a big show manager," he said.

Kay Owen felt giddy. Earl Harrow here in Daytona Beach at this time of the year. The winter season hadn't even begun.

"What's he doing here?"

"Got pushed around some outside," Mike said. "He come in from the inlet to take the kinks out and get his boat looked at."

Before she could ask another question Kay heard a car draw up from the road and turned to look. Out of it stepped two men, one short, hard-looking, the other tall, slim and sleek in his yachting uniform, the perfect society boatman out of the pages of the smart magazines or off the movie screen. She recognized him at once by his black, spiked mustache and his pallid, long gun on a date set far in advance. There were no delays while more favorable weather was awaited. The Graf had a schedule and operated on it.

Safe, Comfortable Ocean Travel in Dirigibles is Near

And in compiling this record, even though she is now six years old, the Graf never has suffered a major mishap.

Eckener said:
"What I would like to have understood is that under competent command an airship is able to cope with all weather conditions and all situations."

"On the trip around the world the Graf ran into the area of a typhoon, which had crossed the Japanese sea shortly before the airship reached that point. I by no means tried to give the vortex of the typhoon as wide a berth as possible. I set our course running far to the eastward along the coast of the peninsula of Sakhalin, in order to be able to make use of the northerly gales caused by the typhoon. This wind brought us in seven hours from the Okhotsk sea to Hokeido, the main island of Japan." (Almost 800 miles.)

Eckener described scores of similar experiences which he and his crews have encountered in the Graf. After a number of years' testing along this line, he said, he arrived at the decision that he would be justified in recommending inauguration of a regular passenger and mail service between Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Rio de Janeiro. The Graf recently completed its 32nd round trip to Brazil.

Contraverting the popular belief that this route was chosen rather than a North American run because of its comparative safety, Eckener declared the lack of a suitable base on the northern portion of the continent was responsible for establishment of the American terminus in Rio.

"I, of course, would have preferred to start a regular service to North America," he added. "On this side, however, we absolutely must have a base with a hangar, in order to be able to refuel safely and under shelter." Commercial considerations also were concerned. The Graf has become an important element in German trade extension in South America.

Approval by President Roosevelt of Dr. Eckener's request for use of the Lakehurst, N. J., naval dirigible hangar as a terminus on the trial flights between Friedrichshafen and the U. S., eliminates the principal obstacle encountered by the organizers of the North Atlantic airship line. With a base assured, Dr. Eckener believes the success of these flights to be a foregone conclusion. He said:

"After our careful study and the experience we have gained so far, we know that an airship service over the North Atlantic can be operated with the same safety and regularity as the service we have now been operating for a period of four years to South America."

"However, only practical operations can give us a clear and defined picture of the manner in which such trips can be accomplished. The results of the demonstration service will give us a basis for a definite schedule."

Eckener gave smiling assurance that comfort of the traveler as well as speed has been taken into consideration. He said:

"In the beginning of our service (between Germany and South America) only a few paying passengers could be found, whereas on our voyages this year the accommodations were sold out constantly."

"All passengers praise the comfort of the accommodations, the smooth and agreeable operation of the airship, the food and the service."

"We have been able to acquire a number of 'steady' guests. These passengers are mostly men and women who cannot spare the time of six to seven weeks for a business trip on steamers plying between South America and Europe. With the airship they can complete the trip within three weeks, including a stopover of two weeks."

The Graf, despite its limited capacity, now is self-supporting. Hence his prediction that the North Atlantic service can be put on a profitable basis with passenger, express and mail revenues.

The most economical operation of an airship on a given route, Eckener pointed out, is with a payload which equals the weight of the fuel to be used on the voyage. He said that in this respect there was no limitation as regards size in dirigible construction. There is in the case of airplanes.

The abundance of helium gas in North America should at once cut expenses considerably as compared to the South American route, where only hydrogen, a more expensive gas, is available.

Helium is calculated to increase greatly the reliability of operation of dirigibles, Eckener concluded.

"I would first of all be prepared to train American personnel for the North Atlantic line, and give these men every opportunity to acquire the necessary experience."

DEVASTATING DEFEAT GIVEN FURMAN ELEVEN

The Furman A. C. journeyed to Bridgeport on Sunday, to suffer a devastating defeat at the hands of the powerful Bridgeport eleven.

Being out-weighted several pounds to the man and the victims of two bad breaks in the opening minutes of play, the local eleven fought gallantly to hold off the charges of the Montgomery county lads.

A blocked kick on the third play enabled Bridgeport to tally their first score, and a fumble on Bristol's 10-yard line, a few plays later, gave the opponents the lead which they held until the last quarter when a rally again gave them fifteen more points. Furman tallied their only points in the second quarter when Bell took a pass from Breslin on the 50-yard line and ran the remaining distance for a touchdown.

The Furman line which has been able to repulse some of the hardest charges made by the different clubs this season, weakened considerably on Sunday, which probably accounts for the opponents' success.

The line-up was as follows:
Bridgeport A. C. Furman A. C.
G. Young left end F. Bell

B. Young	left tackle	J. Rue
J. DeMito	left guard	F. Wilson
S. Young	center	A. Carnvale
M. Piermille	right guard	F. Sugalski
B. Biscotti	right tackle	J. McGinley
A. Salomere	right end	R. Brown
G. Fusco	quarterback	R. Unruh (C)

SENIOR GIRLS HAVE BASKETBALL PRACTICE

The initial practice of the girls' basketball team was held in the Bristol high school gym Monday. Only those girls from the senior class were called out to practice.

Couch Pope has very little material to work with from last year, as most of the first-string players were lost by graduation. Peggy Morrell and Mildred Faber are the only players who received varsity letters last year who are still out for the squad. However, many of the girls saw quite some action in previous years. Eleanor Dyer, Louise Smiger, Arline Woolman, Eleanor Ridge, Alberta Lazlere, Bernice Bruner and Pauline Napoli are in this group.

Miss Pope held a scrimmage so that she could see the girls in action and determine how well they know and can play the game. She also shifted the girls in various positions and took a record of the foul shots of the promising forwards.

Due to the large crowd which usually reports for practice, the group was divided in four parts. The Seniors reported Monday, the Juniors Tuesday, the Sophomores tonight, and the Freshmen Monday.

After all the "cuts" have been made—which will be before Thanksgiving, the hard drill will begin.

The first game of the season will be with the Alumni on the high school floor Friday, January 5th.

TACONY ACES LOSE TO TAMAQUA ELEVEN

Joe Meiman's powerful Tacony Aces held Tamaqua, coal region champions for three quarters of the game to a scoreless tie only to weaken in the last period and lose by the score of 12-0 on Sunday.

Tamaqua recently held Reading

Keys to a scoreless tie and lost to up for Tamaqua prior to their fall game next Sunday with Shenandoah by one touchdown and when a visiting club can travel over 100 miles and then hold such an outfit to a close score, it is considered a great achievement.

It was one of the most bitter battles witnessed in the coal region for a long time and the big crowd enjoyed a clean, fast game furnished by the Philadelphians.

Six former Temple stars were found in Tamaqua's line-up, chief among them being Zanoeh, Rubin Bros., Boner, Egner and Anderson. This game was scheduled as a tune up for Tamaqua prior to their fall game next Sunday with Shenandoah by one touchdown and when a visiting club can travel over 100 miles and then hold such an outfit to a close score, it is considered a great achievement.

Both clubs waged a merry battle in the first three quarters with neither gaining any ground but in the last period Tamaqua received a break.

Corrigan played a splendid game when Harry Fields of Tacony tackled for the Aces, while Choma and Hutchinson played a quarter of the game in good style. This Sunday, Tacony will play the famous Pasadic Red Devils at Passaic, N. J., and another sensational game is anticipated.

Manager Joe Meiman is planning to bring a club composed mostly of Bristol boys to appear in a charity game against St. Ann's, to be played on Christmas Day in Bristol. He will endeavor to include in his club several former stars who gained All-American honors, chief among them being Martin Brill of Notre Dame, and Wisniewski of Pittsburgh. The balance of the club will include Corrigan, Choma, Hutchinson, Dougherty, Johnny Cole of St. Joseph, Fromme, Hewitt of Temple, Robert of Temple, and Rhodes, Temple.

Don't Trifle With Coughs

Don't let them get a strangle hold. Fight them quickly. Creomulsion combines 7 helps in one. Powerful but harmless. Pleasant to take. No narcotics. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.—(Advertisement.)
